Q3 Commentary

Global equities gained in the third quarter despite pronounced volatility on several occasions. Emerging markets performed strongly, supported by the announcement of new stimulus measures in China. The US Federal Reserve (Fed) had left interest rates on hold at a 23-year high in July. However, this was followed in early August by weaker jobs data. This weaker job report sparked fears that the Fed may have left it too late to cut interest rates, and risked damaging the economy. Markets began to price in significant monetary policy easing by the end of the year. At the same time, doubts arose about the returns companies might achieve from the significant investment being made into technologies such as AI. Both factors contributed to market volatility in early August. Resilient corporate earnings during the period helped to settle investor nerves. Fed chair Jerome Powell then used his speech at the Jackson Hole central bank symposium in August to signal an interest rate cut in September. In the event, the Fed announced a 50 basis point (bps) rate reduction.
